

Government Action Is Stimulating Coal Production At Mines

Reports Show Production for This Week Exceeds That of Last Week

U. S. CONTROL WILL HELP

Hoover Is Asked to Make Plans for Maintenance of Coal Prices

By Associated Press

Washington—Favorable reaction to the government's efforts to stimulate coal production despite the miners' strike was seen Thursday in figures assembled by the railroad showing that 13,083 cars of coal were loaded on Monday at operating mines as compared with 9,860 cars last Saturday and with a daily average of 10,914 cars during the six working days previous to Saturday, July 29.

Production for Monday, although an increase over last week still was below the high point of the strike period, which was 17,000 cars. The average daily loading of cars of coal in June 1921 when there were no important labor troubles was 23,382.

The figures made available Thursday are unofficial but are compiled by railroad organizations for report to the geological survey which uses them as a basis for its weekly report on coal production.

Government officials generally expressed satisfaction with the showing and in some quarters it was predicted that with federal machinery for emergency control of coal distribution, which was set in operation Thursday, production would be further stimulated.

TO REGULATE PRICE

Immediately after being named chairman of the governmental committee Wednesday, Secretary Hoover, at the request of the president asked state governors to set up the necessary organization in each state for insuring equitable distribution and maintenance of fair prices for coal under the administration's plan. This organization, he said, was to assume responsibility for all distribution within the boundaries of each state except to railways.

At the same time the cooperation of the several transportation regulatory bodies was required by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Aitchison, another member of the committee, in facilitating operations of the priority orders for shipments of coal and necessities.

While the government thus prepared to distribute to the best advantage the coal supply which continues to fall under the combined effort of the coal and rail strikes, President Harding again suggested that those on strike in both industries return to work under condition already proposed by him while the reasonableness of their demands was being threshed out by agencies set up for that purpose.

BRITISH COAL PRICES RISE AS U. S. BUYS

Miners of South Wales Rejoice at Chance to Work After Long Idleness

By Associated Press

London—The question whether British coal miners will take any action against the exportation of coal to America was before the executive committee of the Miners' Federation Thursday for discussion. Meanwhile reports from British coal fields indicate that nothing will be done by the miners, who after a lean period in their industry are appreciating the stimulus given to employment through the American demand.

The Scottish coal fields have advanced prices sharply since America entered the market while freight rates also have risen and tonnage has become scarce. The greatest effect of the American demand, however, has been produced in the South Wales fields where cheerfulness has succeeded a long period of depression.

American agents snapped up all the coal available in the Cardiff market at the low prices ruling last week and engaged tonnage at low rates. It is said there will be sufficient American orders to absorb all that the collieries can produce to the end of August.

ATTACK STAND OF GENERAL SAWYER

By Associated Press

Cincinnati—Declaring that Brig. Gen. Charles E. Hamilton Cook, Buffalo, N. Y. National commander of the disabled American veterans of the world war, in a statement Thursday said that the organization which he heads comprising more than 90,000 disabled men "would leave no stone unturned until Gen. Sawyer had been removed from the position he holds."

Henceforth the disabled American veterans of the world war will fight to the finish to see that Gen. Sawyer is ousted and that control of hospitals is vested in Col. Charles R. Forbes, Chief of the United States Veterans' Bureau.

WOOL SCHEDULE IS CAUSE OF ROW ON FLOOR ON SENATE

Duties on Waste and Manufacturers' Wool Are To Be Considered Next

By Associated Press

Washington, D. C.—The row in the senate over the wool schedule of the administration tariff passed Thursday into second phase. By a vote of 35 to 16 the senate late Wednesday approved the committee proposal for a rate of 33 cents a pound of scoured content of wool after rejecting 38 to 19 a proposal by Senator Vardsworth, Republican, New York, to cut the rate to 28 cents and defeating 43 to 22 Senator Lenroot's plan to limit to 60 percent ad valorem the rates of coarse wool.

These votes brought the senate to duties on waste and manufacturers' wool. The democrats under the leadership of Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, planned to make a strenuous fight against the duties on yarn, cloth, clothing and other woolen goods, but the 1st votes Thursday had led many senators to the conclusion that about the only changes that would be made in the rates as originally reported would be those proposed by the finance committee majority.

Informal overtures are going on all the time in both rail and coal strikes and pressure just now is being exerted upon the president to take the initiative and call a conference of miners and operators. Some administration officials feel that such a conference would be futile as every time when the last conference was held and the net effect they say would be to stop production while the conference was drifting along in Washington without hope of a compromise.

FARMERS ARE HIT BY COAL SHORTAGE

By Associated Press

Chicago—Reports from thirteen states to secretary J. M. Coverdale of the American Farm Bureau Federation show that farmers are becoming anxious over the continuance of the coal and rail strikes, fearing that shortage of fuel or transportation may seriously interfere with harvesting and marketing of crops.

Federation officials in Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois reported a shortage of coal.

It was said by the officials in the various states that serious shortage of transportation would result if the strike continued.

In Wisconsin it was declared the farm shipments were limited this season and no car shortage had been felt for that reason.

FULL POWERS OF U. S. WORK TO END STRIKE

President Awaiting Developments Before Taking Any Drastic Action

TO WORK WITH GOVERNORS

Harding Wants Labor Board to Bring Rail Men Together on Strike Issues

By David Lawrence

Copyright, 1922, by Post Pub. Co.

Washington—"The government is doing all in its power and is working day and night to bring about a settlement of the strikes—just because we cannot talk about it is no reason to suppose we are doing nothing."

Thus said a spokesman of the administration describing the policy of the government which at the moment has not reached the point where its details can be disclosed.

In a nutshell, however, this may be said to be the latest phase of the strike situation:

President Harding will wait a reasonable length of time, perhaps a week, to determine whether the country's needs will be satisfied by the production of coal arrangements made by the operators since the invitation to open the mines was extended by the White House.

The alternative measures in the event that the nation's fuel supply is inadequate cannot be revealed but they contemplate in a broad sense a definite program of cooperation with the governors of states whereby individual agreements will be made with the striking miners.

LOOKS TO LABOR BOARD

As for the rail strike, President Harding wants the United States Railroad board to make the moves that will bring the disputants together. This involves all the issues that have arisen since the strike was called and here too the tendency is to ask both sides to accept a settlement on the basis of the points they are agreed upon and leave the question of seniority rights to be settled by an impartial tribunal or arbitral body.

Informal overtures are going on all the time in both rail and coal strikes and pressure just now is being exerted upon the president to take the initiative and call a conference of miners and operators. Some administration officials feel that such a conference would be futile as every time when the last conference was held and the net effect they say would be to stop production while the conference was drifting along in Washington without hope of a compromise.

WHITE HOUSE SILENT

The White House has had little to say on the strike situation this week, the impression being given that more progress can be made if a continued flow of newspaper statements. There is disapproval for instance of the many pronouncements issuing from both sides which officials of the government say will only make recession more difficult. Somebody must give way before there can be a settlement and the administration thinks a few more days will see a break in both the rail and coal strikes. Broadly speaking the view of officials is more or less optimistic that out of the many under-the-surface endeavors will come some compromise arrangement which will send the strikers back to work until the issues can be reconsidered in the calm moments of peace rather than in the passionate moments of industrial war.

COURT BACKS TAXATION ON PULLMAN CO.

Sleeping Car Company Ordered to Pay Back Taxes of $200,000

By Associated Press

Madison—The Wisconsin supreme court Thursday upheld the state tax commission's assessment against the Pullman Sleeping Car company, and ordered payment of back taxes amounting to nearly $200,000, accumulated since the case was commenced in the Dane county circuit court in 1913. Justice Jones reversed the court decision and directed a judgement for the state sustaining the constitutionality of the statute governing valuation of railroad property.

"It is our conclusion that neither the statute in question nor the methods pursued by the commission were in violation of any of the provisions of the state or federal constitution; that the assessment made by the commission was not excessive or unjust; and that it should be sustained," Justice Jones said in his opinion.

The Pullman Company was assessed $21,298 as its tax for 1913, paid $10,728 of that amount and refused to pay the remainder, as it has continued to do during the following years up to the present, claiming that the state had assessed intangible property outside of Wisconsin for taxing purposes.

There seems little doubt but that the state may tax cars habitually used in the state according to their fair value and that the valuation need not be limited to the more valuable of the cars used separately, but it may include the intangible value due to what may be called the "organic relation of the property" in the state to the whole system," the opinion reads.

She was indicted as an accomplice of Antonio Cassese, wealthy tobacco merchant, who fled when a second indictment charging a plot to smuggle huge quantities of liquor into the country followed seizure of two of his vessels.

DISTILLERS ASK PROHIBITION MEN TO STAY IN BOUNDS

Meeting Called in Louisville to Arrange Cooperation With Authorities

By Associated Press

Louisville, Ky.—A meeting of distillers of the country held here Wednesday for the purpose of selecting a committee to work with the treasury department in relation to the concentration of medicinal whiskey and grain alcohol eclipsed itself into an attack upon the prohibition enforcement department of the government and proved itself unanimously hostile to the distillers, attorneys and others who attended the meeting, they declared on their departure from this city Thursday.

Resolutions appealing to the president, secretary of the treasury and commissioner of internal revenue to see that prohibition commissioner Haynes properly conducts his office in conformity with the legal regulations were passed, and copies were sent to each of those named. In the event the resolution is ignored or not acted upon federal injunctions will be sought by the distillers throughout the country to prevent the prohibition enforcement officials from exceeding their authority and to force them to observe the laws and the limits of their authority. Attorney Levi Cooke, of Washington, counsel for the distillers declared.

PARENTS MUST CONSENT TO CHILDREN'S ADOPTION

By Associated Press

Madison—All adoptions of children in Wisconsin for the past 37 years, made without the consent of their natural parents, are void as a result of a recent supreme court decision. R. M. Hoyt, deputy attorney general ruled in an opinion to the state board of control.

The supreme court held, he advises the board, that its consent is not a sufficient basis for the adoption of children unless the consent of the natural parents is secured. Children who were illegally adopted and are still under 18 years of age must be returned to the state public school if their parents refuse to sanction their adoption, the opinion states.

HUGE LIQUOR PLOT IS SEEN IN EMBARGO

Government Employees Are Suspected of Corruption by Bootleg Rings

By Associated Press

New York—The embargo recently placed on liquor importations by the government was attributed by the New York Tribune Thursday to a successful plot by a huge bootleg combine by which "liquor warehouses which had bulged with imported wines, and whiskeys now bulge with barrels of water."

"Lack of convicting evidence alone," says the newspaper, "prevents the government from officially revealing one of the biggest liquor scandals since prohibition."

Bootleg rings, the article says, are suspected of having corrupted government employees in various branches of the revenue service in a successful plot to divert millions of dollars worth of liquor importations held in bonded warehouses.

From August to the end of December last year $5,500,000 worth of liquors were imported and stored in government warehouses, ready along the Atlantic seaboard and during the 12 months of 1921 liquor importations, the story says, more than double those of 1920. Since permits to withdraw the liquors were necessary, no alarm was felt over the incoming tide of whiskey and wine, but the bootleggers are alleged to have waived the use of permits and developed the practice of watering their visible stocks.

It was said that the largest collection of bead work and Indian curios ever exhibited by the tribes will be shown at the gathering. Demonstrations of rug making, moccasins, bead work bows and arrows will be given daily.

There are not many of the old Indians left, it was said, and it will not be long before the pow-wows will be held minus the old braves who witnessed the dances in the forests of Wisconsin where now stand the modern business structures of the white man.

Prospects of Peace in Rail Controversy Brighten With Conference

SENIORITY IS PROBLEM

Harding Points to Labor Board as Source of Settlement of Differences

By Associated Press

Chicago—Just as the railway strike seemed to have settled to a long drawn out and determined battle, hopes for peace were revived by the gathering in Washington of strike leaders and railway executives.

Although no official announcement was made, it was believed the presence in Washington of B. M. Jewell, head of the striking shopmen, and his executive council, could mean only that they had gone there from Chicago for a conference with President Harding, W. W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania lines and T. Dewitt Cuyler, chairman of the association of railway executives, were in the capital Thursday and other rail chiefs, including L. F. Lore, president of the Delaware and Hudson were expected to arrive during the day.

Restoration of seniority rights to men on strike remained the chief obstacle to peace. The stand of the rail heads on this question was stated by H. E. Byram, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and other rail chiefs, including L. F. Lore, president of the Delaware and Hudson were expected to arrive during the day.

In view of President Harding's statement that the rights of men at work and the rights of strikers must alike be protected, made Wednesday in a message to the chairman of the railway employees publicity association, it was believed that any agreement must include respect for the rights of men now working as well as the rights of strikers.

POINTS TO LABOR BOARD

In his statement President Harding again pointed to the Railroad Labor board as the agency through which the differences of strikers and railroads would be finally adjusted. He indicated that he would ask the board to grant the shopmen a rehearing, although he said "the decisions of the Railroad Labor board are in compliance with a mandate of the law making body of the United States."

Government and local officials in various cities were preparing to mobilize resources at their command in response to the Interstate Commerce Commission's orders concerning transportation of fuel and food stuffs.

Minor developments included disorders at widely scattered points, a walkout of 300 shopmen on the Philadelphia and Reading railway not high-erected by the strike, several arrests on varying charges, issuance of an injunction or two, and service of eviction notices on former employees occupying railway company dwellings.

It was expected that the boys would remain at Camp Goff four weeks. J. E. Dennison camp director said on his arrival here but there were so many helpers available this summer that the cherries were picked in a much shorter time. It is estimated that the Y. M. C. A. group plucked more than 100,000 quarts from the trees representing more than a million dollars worth of fruit.

"We went through our camping experience this year without an accident of any kind," said Mr. Dennison. "There were only one or three cases of homesickness and no troubles except mild stomach disorders. The boys in our camp had excellent meals and plenty of recreation and they are returning in robust condition."

BEST YEAR IN HISTORY

Mr. E. Goff, owner of the orchards at Camp Goff, was one of the speakers at the closing banquet Tuesday night and said that this was the best year in his experience of eight years from the standpoint of efficient harvesting of the crop and conduct of the camp. He complimented the boys highly on their work. Others who gave talks were O. C. Artman, Madison, camp superintendent; Frank B. Sherwood of the state board of health; Mr. Long of Sturgeon Bay; Roger Tuttrup, Donald Gebhardt, Mr. Dennison and "Ma" Deacon, the famed camp cook. Will Room In 2 Americas With Auto For Two Years

They say a rolling stone gathers no moss, but two "rolling stones" passed through Appleton Wednesday intent on gaining something more than momentum.

These two "stones" are Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Adams, a young couple from Toledo, Ohio, who started from home in May and intend to tour continuously for two years. Their designation as rolling stones is self-chosen because they have the name printed on the side of their unique car. The couple intends to roam leisurely, going first to northern Michigan, then over the Rocky mountains to the west coast and later through the south. Having seen much of the United States their intention now is to go through Mexico and Central America to points in South America.

The Mexican visit depends on the peaceable condition of the country, however, Mr. Adams said. The Adams car is perhaps one of the best appearing and most convenient camping outfits seen here. Its outside resembles an expensive limousine. With the usual curved lines and plate glass windows, which are screened. All one sees inside except the two seats for the occupants at the front is some cabinets along the side walls and at the back end. These contain a folding bed, a cooking outfit and clothing and provisions, all tucked out of sight when not in use.

Mr. Adams is connected with a large electrical concern and establishes agencies as he goes, explaining partially the usual query, "How do they do it?"

FIRE INSURANCE ON CITY PROPERTY GIVEN BIG BOOST

Protection on Buildings is Increased 60 Per Cent by Committee

The insurance on city owned property has been increased about 60 per cent by the council's committee on public grounds and buildings according to H. P. Beske chairman. The total insurance carried by the fire department and police station, isolation hospital, poor house, storage building, caretaker's cottage at Alicia park, log cabin filtration plant, pumping station, old pumping station and oil house now is $102,500.

The city hall previously was insured for only $5,000. This has been increased to $25,000. The contents of the council chamber and city offices is insured for $3,500. This does not include insurance on the contents of the library which is taken care of by other insurance.

EQUITY REQUESTS APPOINTMENT OF FARMER EXPERT

Large Crowd Attends Demonstration With Tuberculous Cattle

That a county farm agent be provided for Outagamie county by the county board was the request made in a resolution passed at the Outagamie county convention of the American Society of Equity at Hortonville on Wednesday. Another resolution was introduced condemning the appropriation for county fairs, but after a speech by Henry Culbertson of Medina, the resolution was lost. Speeches were made by Mr. Culbertson, Dr. Larsen of Milwaukee, representing the Equity Hospital association and William Hurst, former county secretary. More than 1,500 people witnessed the two demonstrations of tubercular cattle, which were made by Dr. T. L. Knapp and Dr. Cass of the state veterinary and Dr. Cass of Madison were present at the demonstrations and answered questions concerning the diseased herds and the prevention of the disease.

SEEK SENTIMENT ON TRAPPING SEASON

A public hearing will be held at 8 o'clock Thursday evening in the court house here to determine the sentiment of Outagamie county people relative to a movement to close the season for trapping fur bearing animals all the coming winter. The hearing will be conducted by W. E. Barber of the state conservation commission. Similar meetings are held in all parts of the state. There has been a constant desire among many sportsmen to stop trapping of fur bearing animals in the state for a year in order to give them an opportunity to increase in number.

Oscar Miers, 1922 DeForest ave., has sold his home to Mrs. Minnie Schuknecht, who will take possession in the fall. The latter intends to move here from Black Creek township, where she resided on a farm. The deal was consummated through L. O. Hanson and the consideration was private.

Ready to Thrash Wheat Farmers are now getting ready to thrash their wheat. Rye thrashing was begun last week. Fred Kasten of Grand Chute was one of the first to begin with the wheat. It is reported he had a good yield.

Gum Chewers Need 'Parking Board' For Cuds

"They stick gum everywhere," said the housekeeper of one of the hotels. "Wherever they happen to be standing when they think about getting rid of their gum, it is stuck. When a person stands in front of a mirror he or she is often struck with an idea that it would be just as well not to chew and accordingly he sticks it on the back of the dresser."

"And when he goes to bed at night and finds that he still has his cud, it is stuck any place within reach. It may be the head of the bed, it may be the wall anywhere near the bed, it may be on the bed itself or on the bedside table. He may also just drop it on the floor. We have a great deal of trouble in the halls where people drop their cuds on the carpets and nothing really removes the black spot. Yes, gum, next to cigarette stubs, is the worst thing I know about."

Gum, everywhere you go, some one has a tale to tell about gum. Chewed cuds, saved for the moment, but forgotten before the meal is over, are the bane of eating houses. Men. They are also the bane of the dishwashers, when people stick them on the bottom of the plate and then they slip unnoticed into the hot water. "For Heaven's sake, tell them to swallow their gum," implored one man who has come to hate the stuff with all his soul. "Just imagine the job it is to scrape those things off. It is bad enough to think about but we have to clean the tables and dishes and counters. Yes, the parking board is a good idea."

SURE HELP TO SICK WOMEN

Mrs. Baker, so much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Anxious to Help Others

Lebanon, Indiana.—"I was completely run down from women's troubles and stomach trouble and for a long time was hardly able to do my work. I had some friends who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they told me about it. I know what it has done for me and I recommend it to others, as I am sure it will be a great help to all sick women. It is a wonderful medicine, and I give you permission to use my testimonial and my photograph." —Mrs. EMMA BAKER, 310 S. East St., Lebanon, Indiana.

These letters recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound ought to convince women of the great worth of this medicine in the treatment of ailments to which they are often subject.

Mrs. Baker calls it "a wonderful medicine." If you are suffering from troubles women often have, or feel all run down, without any ambition or energy for your regular work, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a natural restorative and should help you.

STILL PLENTY OF ROOM IS LEFT FOR COLLEGE STUDENTS

Large Girls' Dormitories Are Filled But More Students Can Be Accepted

Room reservations are pouring into the office of Lawrence college dairy and August will be the month when the most reservations from new students will be made. Although the requests have not been quite as many as last year, there are more rooms reserved at the present time this year than last year at the end of July. Many prospective students who had signed up for rooms early last fall withdrew their reservations in July because of a change in plans.

Both of the large girls' dormitories—Ormsby and Russell Sage halls—have been filled to capacity for some time, but there still is room in the residence dormitories—Peabody house, Smith house, Ormsby annex and Sage cottage. There still are some rooms in Brookway hall, but as a general thing, the boys do not reserve their rooms in advance as the girls do.

Registration at the Lawrence Conservatory of Music, indicates that there will be more students in musical work than last year. At the music school August also is the big registration month.

The college campus and buildings are exceptionally quiet this summer with all but two of the professors, Dr. Arthur H. Weston and Fred Trezise, out of the city. Few changes are being made in the buildings and the usual painting and cleaning is being done. Dr. Samuel Plantz, president of the college, who has been spending the summer at Ludington, Mich., plans to return to Appleton on Aug. 3 to take up the work of administering again. Dean Carl J. Waterman, who has been studying in Chicago, will also return at the end of the month to get ready for the next year at the conservatory.

Kittens Die Of Broken Heart When Separated

Dying of a broken heart is not fashionable in this day, but to have a brother and sister die on the same day after they had been separated for just a week is a thing which does not happen often, but that is what happened to a certain feline family on Wednesday.

The mistress of Fluff, a little white ball of purring fur, went to give him some medicine on Wednesday morning because he had not eaten on Tuesday. He was dead. She immediately called the friend to whom she had given Tupples, his sister, who also had been ill on the day before. Her mistress found her dead. The kittens, which were eight weeks old, had played together all the time until a week ago, when they were separated. They soon lost their "pen," declined to eat and went about crying "meow" for each other. Even Fluff who had his mother to console him, never recovered from the separation.

There was no broken heart for the third feline child, however, who was separated from her mother, sister and brother when she was just a wee handful of black and white fur. She was taken to the home of the champion alley-cat chaser of a neighborhood, a Boston bull dog. The first few days were pretty dangerous for Miss Kitty, but now, no maiden ever had more adoring swain. The dog is her playmate and protector, allowing her to chew his ear, lick his face and scratch his nose. He still is death to the alleycats.

The funerals of the two tragedians took place on Wednesday afternoon.

THE ELIGIBILITY OF JUDGE GRAASS FOR CONGRESS

There is a provision in Section Ten, Article Seven, of the constitution of Wisconsin which reads as follows:

They (supreme court and circuit judges) shall hold no office of public trust, except a judicial office, during the term for which they are respectively elected, and all votes for either of them for any office, except a judicial office, given by the legislature or the people, shall be void.

As was expected, this provision is being raised by the opposition to the candidacy of Judge Henry Graass of Green Bay for congress. While on first blush the constitutional limitation might appear to apply to Judge Graass, the fact is that it does not apply. Similar provisions, both constitutional and statutory, in other states have been held to be of no force and effect where the office sought is a federal office, or where the body to which a candidate aspires is the judge of the qualifications of its members. The question has been passed on and there is a long line of decisions which uniformly hold that states cannot interfere in any way in the election of candidates to such offices as the senate, the house of representatives, the presidency, etc.; that is, they cannot place limitations or restrictions on the qualifications of the candidates. These qualifications are prescribed by the federal constitution, and any person coming within the qualifications is entitled to be a candidate. The states have nothing to say in the matter. Furthermore, the federal constitution says each house of congress is the judge of the qualifications of its members, and this authority is so broad that not even the federal courts can interfere, let alone the states.

There is, therefore, no tenable legal inhibition against Judge Graass running for congress. There is not the slightest question that under the constitution of the United States he has a perfect right to stand as a candidate, or that the house of representatives in the Wisconsin constitution is simply non-operative in such a case.

The proposal to invoke the constitutional provision against Judge Graass is of course purely political. It so happens that one of his opponents in the congressional field is the present secretary of state, Elmer Hall, and that the duty of receiving Judge Graass' nomination papers and certifying his name on the primary ballot devolves on the secretary of state. Any attempt by Mr. Hall to keep Judge Graass' name off the ticket would be a usurpation of authority and an arbitrary act, as the duties of the secretary of state are ministerial and he has no option but to follow the directions of the primary law. Even if there were any real question as to Judge Graass' eligibility the secretary of state could not properly determine the question. It would have to be raised by an interested citizen through court proceedings restraining him from placing the name on the ballot. It is said this move will be made by the supporters of Hall, with the sole idea of eliminating Graass as Hall's opponent in the approaching primary.

The motive behind this attack upon the candidacy of Judge Graass is clear. There is no desire to protect the state constitution or to serve any moral or ethical end. Judge Graass' candidacy has filled the opposing interests with alarm and they have hit upon this plan to intimidate or force him out of the race. It is a reminder of the celebrated Bancroft case some years ago. They know that if his name goes on the ticket, he will be nominated and elected, and they further know that his election would be valid and legal and would be sustained by the house of representatives in case of a contest. If they did not know this they would let his name go on the ticket, safe in the assurance that the ballots cast for him would be void and that even if he did receive plurality of the vote cast it would be of no effect.

But they are fully aware of the law, which rests upon the sound principle that if the state of Wisconsin could set regulations that would limit the qualifications of candidates for congress by excluding circuit judges, it could set regulations about other federal offices which would discriminate against an individual or class and thus prevent aspirants for the presidency or United States senatorship, against which there might exist prejudice or conspiracy, from becoming a candidate. The exercise of such power by a state is repulsive to both the constitution of the United States and to Americanism. The provision in the Wisconsin constitution was evidently meant to apply only to state offices, because it could have jurisdiction or control over no other.

THE PRINCIPLE OF ARBITRATION

The plan outlined by President Harding for a national coal commission, like the provisions of the transportation act of 1920 creating the United States Railroad Labor Board, is based on a principle which will have to apply to natural resources and public utilities. And the sooner this principle is recognized by capital and labor the nearer will be permanent industrial peace.

Capital and labor engaged in coal mining, railroading, or the operation of any natural resource or public utility, are in the public service. They are in the public service because they are running public necessities. It naturally follows that they must both be subject to public will.

If capital and labor cannot agree as to wages and working conditions they must submit to arbitration. They cannot resort to the lockout or the strike and inconvenience or injure the public, which they serve. This principle will have to be understood and adopted.

TO ENCOURAGE MUSICAL COMPOSITION

The annual summer light-opera season in the municipal open air theatre in Forest Park, St. Louis, has been such a popular and financial success that the management now proposes to offer a prize of $5,000, every year, for an original light opera. The award would be divided equally between the composer and the librettist.

An international competition of this kind, once yearly, should have the effect of stimulating the best talent to engage in musical composition and of raising light opera to a more artistic standard. Talent which might not be heard of otherwise would be encouraged by this incentive to serious work.

The St. Louis opera has developed an excellent local chorus of several hundred voices and increased and extended interest in music. The annual $5,000 prize for the best light opera would prove to be of general benefit to musical art.

The Fall of Man

For a long time, on and off, man has been having a good laugh at the expense of woman's passion for clothes and style.

Man, sitting apart, has viewed it as the one really original circus of the century. He has preached the redeeming superiority of his own sex. Give a man a hat, he has pointed out, and he asks no odds on style or shape. It is the same with his shirt—albeit he asks that it be equipped with the useful buttons. Give his pockets in his trousers and he is content. His coat may be the vintage of 1917 or 1922 for all the difference it makes to him. All he wants is something to wear and he wears it without a road map issued by the creators of styles and fashions.

So through the years has man been telling the story of what a rugged, careless guy he is. But a change is coming. Perhaps the weather we've been having is merely the angels weeping. Certainly the sign posts have been up. First we had the "What Men Wear" articles in the theatre programs. Then came such terms as "sharpie" and "cake-eater." And now some of the daily newspapers have blossomed forth with daily articles on "crisper color and more positive character," and there is a line about the vivid pattern of men's scarfs "and even hat ribbons."

So it has come to this! The laughter of a century at feminine styles is suddenly chilled—JERSEY JOURNAL.

Wisdom From Goddes

Burly Sir Auckland Geddes made a few snappy remarks to his countrymen which however unpolished were well worth the saying. Among other things he said: "We need a large number of intelligent Britons to travel in America, not to deliver lectures, but to keep their mouths shut until they know America."

It is a sterling idea. Of course an intelligent man always keeps his mouth shut until he knows what he is talking about. As very few more or less distinguished visitors to these shores do keep their mouths shut, the assumption is that they are not intelligent. If the English make the hint they will discourage the sort of persons who have been sent, and start over some of the intelligent ones.

In the matter of foreign lecturers America has been patient and generous. Every one of them came frankly for the money there was in it, apologetically sacrificing their aristocratic instincts for the benefit of the good old family purse back home. Looking them over in retrospect, very few contributed anything worth while to the general happiness and knowledge, while they did unmistakably contribute a lot of nonsense.

The British ambassador will find many here who support his motion.—DETROIT NEWS.

Wholesome Complexion Dope

Aside from the blackheads and pimples of youth which are a rather wholesome restraint on youthful vanity, the most common complaint about the complexion is that it seems muddy or sallow. This sallow tint, according to the W. K. Mrs. Sumney and the busy Ben Told, shows the victim needs something for the liver. Often she does, but not so badly as she needs something for the lungs. The healthy complexion is a fresh tint. Flesh tint is yellow red. The yellow is the natural color of the skin with its underlying layer of fat shining thru; the red is contributed by the blood in the minute vessels of the skin. Temporarily withdrawn considerable blood from the nice flesh tinted complexion and you have a sallow complexion, as in fainting or fright. Permanently withdrawn considerable blood from the skin, and the same sallow appearance follows, as in impure blood from the liver or from the lungs, or from the stomach, or from the great splanchnic reservoir or pool—in the vast network of vessels within the abdominal and lower chest cavities. Here in this splanchnic pool, according to physiologists and surgeons who have studied shock, a large part of the total mass of blood may stagnate, as much as one fourth of all the blood in the body, temporarily, as in shock, or for an indefinite period as in many cases of prostration or downward sagging of abdominal organs, slovenly posture and neglect of proper physical education.

This will make no lasting impression on the unwise because it involves some thought, but nevertheless it is a fact that the girl or woman who has a practical knowledge of hygiene and strives to get physical education as well as mental has the finest complexion and the least necessity for artificial complexion dope. The simplest, cheapest and most surprisingly effective dope I can suggest for the purpose of opposing sallowness of the complexion is remedy which, unfortunately, does not appeal to the judgment of the great majority of those who most need it. It does appeal to the downright simpletons, on the one hand, and to the "nuts" or highbrows, on the other, but there are a lot of folks who decline to be either simpletons or nuts who certainly would benefit from a course of this medicine if they could only be cajoled into giving it a faithful trial. The remedy is half a dozen somersaults on the floor each night, and another half a dozen forward rolls as a minimum. Take as many more as you have an appetite for, and having rolled your quota forward, if you're young yet try rolling a few backward too. Darned foolishness you ever heard of, but it does get that stagnant blood out of the splanchnic pool and back into circulation.

Hand and Heart in This Work

Bran

When I am away from home it is difficult for me to regulate my habits. Please tell me whether it makes any difference whether one takes so much bran or so much mineral oil for the bowels?

—B. R. E.

Answer—Bran should be your choice.

III. Advice Use of Saccharin

Is there any harm in taking about three grains of saccharin daily, as an artificial sweetener in place of sugar? Have been put on a diet for albuminuria and overweight—Mrs. J. G. F.

Answer—Yes. Saccharin should never be used unless by specific direction of your physician. There can be no objection to a certain amount of sugar in the diet of one who has albuminuria or who is overweight. Saccharin is capable of destroying blood corpuscles and weakening the heart.

After Effects of Gassing

Will one who has been overcome by illuminating gas have any after effects such as stomach, lung or heart trouble?—C. G.

Answer—The constituent of illuminating gas which is most poisonous is carbon monoxide. Poisoning by carbon monoxide is likely to leave the system generally in a bad condition for several months.

Nearsightedness

Can you tell me what an operation will cure nearsightedness? Is there any kind of eye exercise or other treatment which will overcome nearsightedness? I hate to think of wearing glasses—Miss K. B.

Answer—If you refer to ordinary nearsightedness (myopia) that is due to a peculiarity in the shape or form of the eyeball, which happens to be longer from front to back in some heads. Being an accident or incident of growth and development, it is incurable. No operation exercises, or other treatment can overcome nearsightedness. The early use of properly fitted glasses will conserve the vision, which, without the help of glasses in early life, often grows worse at or after adult age. It is a great mistake to try to do without glasses if you are nearsighted. Thousands of young persons who need no glasses at all are wearing them because they think glasses look nice. Of course that is wrong, but it should help you to overcome your prejudice against glasses.

Resume of American and Foreign Newspaper Opinion

LORD ROBERT CECIL'S PLAN

The proposal made to the League of Nations by Lord Robert Cecil that it divide the world into four regions of defense and proceed with a comprehensive programme of disarmament has found general approval so far as the majority of American editors are concerned. They believe that this suggested action is a direct follow up plan from the recent Washington conference. It is practicable, they assert, and would allow the various nations to make a real start back along the road toward normalcy. A few editors oppose, insisting that the League of Nations is a failure and that anything sponsored by it must prove worthless.

The suggestion is "distinctly encouraging" according to the Winnipeg TRIBUNE because "the provision to divide the world into four regions of defense, given as America, Europe, Asia, and Africa, would meet the possible objection of the United States of being obliged to take part in wars abroad. United States obligations would be simply in accord with the Monroe Doctrine. In the great work of world organization for the maintenance of order a permanent military commission would be the active controlling authority, subject to approval by the council of the League of Nations. The Commission would determine whether the contracting powers were complying with the agreement for reduction of armaments and whether any state's preparation constituted a menace. Human nature cannot endure the strain of another war. The time is here when this civilized world must adjust itself toward something like world order or be precipitated into the abyss."

And the New York POST believes that "the new disarmament programme is a courageous attack upon a much more difficult problem than that taken up at Washington. Nothing could be harder to devise than an acceptable scheme for ending heavy military armaments on the continent. The League is a highly practical body. It has prevented three wars, created an international court of justice, is governing a considerable part of Europe and has formulated a sound programme of economic restoration." The swing toward disarmament is noticeable, the Buffalo NEWS is convinced, that "it may be too much to hope that diplomatic thought can give way at once to a general opinion for disarmament. But the suggestions made at Paris are heartening. The League can indicate its right to matters by being something practical in this direction. A fair start will justify it in the eyes of America."

The suggestion is another step forward from the policy adopted at the Washington conference and the Asbury Park PRESS points out that "with this arrangement in force, armament reduction would go forward systematically, and would be checked up constantly to make sure that no nation was exceeding its legitimate defensive needs. The United States apparently is to be invited to adhere to the plan, while remaining outside the League. This should not be offensive even to the die hards who fear for America's safety if she departs from her policy of isolation."

The St. Louis POST DISPATCH suggests that "sentiment toward an association of nations as an imperative necessity is steadily growing. The Harding administration made a step toward it in the Pacific treaties and the suggestion of one is constantly recurring in the speeches of Republicans."

The Hague court contained an irresistible appeal for American cooperation. Now comes the appeal to join in general arms limitation and peace guarantees which offer the only solution of the problem of rehabilitation, which is absolutely necessary to the full revival of prosperity. How long can we stand apart from such vital movements for civilization and human welfare?"

"Such a step by the conflicting nations of Europe would be the greatest move toward the peaceful millennium in history," says the Lansing STATE JOURNAL. "But as soon as such proposals are heard comes the warning from others that war still threatens. Europe always trembles on the brink of war. One great conflict does not bring universal peace as it promises but creates new causes for fighting. The United States is fortunate to be out of the chaos." Then again, the New York WORLD points out "the reduction of sea armaments was the subject of the Washington conference called by Mr. Harding. Like action on land is as imperative. It is the duty of the League of Nations to attempt it. The United States does not recognize the League's existence," while the Charleston NEWS AND COURIER insists that "no reasonable person will criticize the administration for proceeding with due deliberation but it seems a trifle unfortunate that the first reaction to the Cecil plan at Washington gives an impression of coldness toward it, and the hope is expressed that plan may be kept alive until that time, somewhere in the future when our Government will be able to deal intelligently with the great international problem of peace and disarmament."

The St. Louis GLOBE DEMOCRAT believes that the Cecil plan "if it could be carried into effect would remove the principal American objection to the present Association of Nations, and open the way to American cooperation with it in other fields of humanitarian endeavor without fear of political entanglements." But the New York GLOBE thinks that "only splendid fool will throw himself into such a task" as attempting to reduce the armaments which "are crushing half of the world into poverty" but "if the world is to be enduring at all as a place to live in, exactly this job must be done and on all probability on exactly these lines. If only madmen will break their hearts in the attempt then it is such madmen that we need." The favorable manner in which the Cecil proposal has been received convinces the Roanoke WORLD LEADER that "some sort of program for world wide disarmament probably will find its way before the League for definite action in the near future. This in itself will be a long step toward relieving the world of the evils of competitive armament."

But when all of the facts are faced the Lexington LEADER believes that "to realize that Sir Robert's design is chimerical it is only necessary to look squarely at the situation in Europe, where the state of mind was never less pacific and conciliatory, and where there was never less cohesion and unity. The supposition that these powers, hostile and suspicious, can be persuaded to enter into such a compact now is clearly irrational. Yet if such a scheme could be put into effect the American people would be highly gratified. The Monroe doctrine, after the irreconcilable also would be obstacles to the United States accepting the Cecil plan the Mobile REGISTER thinks, adding that "in any case the proposition is not so easy, as, on first view, it appears to be," while the Fort Worth STAR TELEGRAM believes that the "weakness ought to be apparent at once, both from the standpoint of past experience and from the present situation. It was in Europe that the world war was fought, but it drew us into its vortex and another world war would likely do the same. If the plan is adopted it will be a step backward."

And it must be remembered, the Pittsburgh PRESS declares that while "limitation of land armament, accompanied by the demobilization of the greater part of the forces now under arms all over Europe would be a Godsend to mankind France alone can block any effort to secure it, through the League of Nations. That body, having been conceived in hypocrisy and treachery, accomplishes nothing."

CARAVAN OF THE AIR

London—Never has German ingenuity been exemplified more characteristically than in a marvelous aerial "contraption" they are showing now with pride to visitors from overseas who have money to spend the Evening News reports.

It is generally what one might call a "flying house"—a regular medley of such "gadgets" as the mind of the German genius can evolve.

The way to realize the "inwardness" of the scheme is to imagine yourself flying out away somewhere, remote from small settlements or estates, in the real "back blocks" of civilization.

Evening comes. It begins to get dark. You shut off your engine and glide into a clearing. Are you, in such a case, deprived of all comforts? Far from it. This is where your "multiturn-in-parvo plane" comes in.

It is a garage and a residence as well as a flying machine. You press a button and the wings of the machine fold neatly and closely beside the hull. Then you bend down and open a long drawer or cupboard which extends the entire length of the fuselage.

From this, marvelously compact, emerges a "super-ten" devised to fit snugly over the entire aeroplane as it stands on the ground and to provide space on either side, in front and behind.

Nor do you have to grope about in the dark within your "garage-ten." With typical German forethought it is provided with neat windows, like a real house.

Actually within fifteen minutes of alighting from the air, you are provided not only with a shelter for your winged steed, but also with a draught-proof, rain-proof little "house" in which you spend the night in comfort, even in the most desolate spot.

Next morning, having risen refreshed, you just take up—or rather pack—your abode and fly.

This complete "flying campment" outfit, as wily Germans realize, will have very practical attractions for those whose business in life it is to prospect and penetrate the wilds.

CENSOR INTERFERES WITH BRITISH PRODUCERS

London—After presenting Grand Guignol for two years at the Little Theatre, Mr. Jos. Levy has decided to abandon this form of entertainment.

The present programme, the eighth, is being withdrawn and Mr. Levy told the "Daily News" that he had not finally decided his plans for the future.

"The reason I am finishing with Grand Guignol is the too rigid censorship," he added.

"So many plays that I have submitted the censor have been turned down that rather than depart from my original scheme of having at least one or two real thrillers in every programme I have decided to discontinue Grand Guignol."

"It is impossible to carry on while the Lord Chamberlain's Department raise so many difficulties."

BRITISH OIL BUBBLE BURSTS
London—Those trustful souls who dreamed of a great British oilfield are doomed to disappointment the Daily Times says.

The last stage in the Government search for oil in Derbyshire is reached in the sale by action of the boring, pumping, and storage plant used at the various wells in the Chetfield district.

By direction of the Government Disposal and Liquidation Commission a firm of auctioneers is now selling the plant, this being the first auction of oilfield material to be held in this country.

Lo, The Poor Millionaire

By Frederic J. Hasdick

Washington, D. C.—The term millionaire may mean one thing or it may mean another. To the average person a millionaire is a man who is the fortunate possessor of $1,000,000. To some of those who study the statistics of income published by the Internal Revenue Bureau of the Treasury a millionaire is not one who possesses merely $1,000,000 but one who has an income of $1,000,000 a year or more. Such a man must possess a fortune of many millions of dollars.

The vicissitudes of these super-millionaires, most of whom were created by the war, is an interesting story. There may be some fiction in it, also. It is difficult to determine whether the statistics reflect actual vicissitudes of fortune or jugglery of figures, but the figures must be taken at their face value and the assumption made that they constitute a true report. If that be true, the super-millionaires of the United States came and went in the war years as summer insects come and go, but there are many still buzzing around.

In 1914, the first year in which the great war in Europe changed the face of the world and turned the channels of business, there were 60 persons in the United States who reported incomes of $1,000,000 a year or more. The Internal Revenue Bureau has no higher classification than this, but it is said that if the classifications were carried upward, it would be found that there are incomes of $10,000,000 a year and more.

By 1915 the crop of super-millionaires had doubled. There were 120 persons who returned income of $1,000,000 a year and over. In 1916 the number had reached 206. This was the peak. In 1917 figures had fallen to 141, but in 1918 it was 67; in 1919, 65; and in 1920 there were but 33 Americans reporting incomes of $1,000,000 a year and over.

WHEN THEY DWINDLED
Observers of these matters see a coincidence in the fact that the great incomes began to dwindle in the same year that the United States entered the war and laid heavy taxes and surtaxes on incomes. The figures are supposed to give, not the taxable income merely, but the total net income. That is, these amounts were returned whether taxable or not. The point has been made that the great incomes did not actually fall off when the United States entered the war so sharply as has been indicated, but that by some mysterious manipulation, they were kept out of the returns. That may be fact and it may be that the beneficiaries of these vast incomes, realizing that a large proportion of their funds would be taken by the income tax collector, began in 1916 to distribute their property to heirs or to dissipate it in other ways.

If the normal definition of a millionaire is used, the statistics are astounding. Assuming that a millionaire is one who has an estate worth $1,000,000 the numbers can be arrived at by assuming that each receives an income of 10 per cent of his fortune. This would be at the rate of $100,000 a year. In 1914 the number of persons having incomes of $100,000 a year was 2,258. This was the high tide for the combined super-millionaires and a grand total of 2,258 was obtained. This was the year in which the European war broke out.

Taking this same definition of millionaires, there were in 1915 some 3,704 of them and, with the super-millionaires added, a grand total of 3,824. The figures for 1916 show 6,427 with 206 super-millionaires to add, giving a grand total of 6,633. In 1917 the number was 6,523 and, with the super-millionaires, 6,634. This was the high tide for the combined super-millionaires and a grand total of 2,258 was obtained. This was the year in which the European war broke out.

Whom Shall Mollie Marry?

Chapter 18 — Ben Reenters Plot

Quickly though she had left Ben Wheeler's office, Mollie glimpsed the effect her words had upon him. "Some day someone will use force on you—and then heaven pity you!" She saw him stiffen and the fighting look come to his eyes, but a look of dismay too.

Along with the brute in the primitive male is a childlike side. It is the frightened child in such a man that appeals to the protective instinct of woman.

Mollie knew in the last analysis she could both frighten and soothe Ben Wheeler. And that knowledge supplemented the fascination she felt in the wielder of the club.

In her bewilderment Mollie turned to Billy, the understanding. She would go to his office. But Billy, as if in answer to her need, turned the corner at that very moment, his manner hurried, his face grave.

"Mollie! Just whom I wanted!" Before she could answer, Billy hailed a taxi. The address he gave the driver was one of the poorer of Midvale's hotels.

Billy took Mollie's hands, holding them firmly.

"Mollie—Don Manning has come back. The affair Ben Wheeler brought to a crisis—with Lella May rose—just about smashed. Don He opened in Pittsburgh half mad with sleeplessness and brooding. Made a hash of his part and the Pittsburgh people broke the contract. He came back here to get his old place, but the Lyceum people, furious at his leaving them, turned him down.

"He's in a brainstorm—blames Wheeler for his trouble—telephoned me, asking where he could be found. He sounded crazy. I'm hoping you can help me bring him to reason."

Fingers of fears clutched Mollie's heart. It was not hard for her to imagine Donald Manning, mad and desperate, doing any rash and melodramatic thing.

"Yes—it is bad, Billy," she whispered huskily.

They reached the stuffy hotel and Don came down to see them.

The change in him was shocking. His instinct for appearance seemed gone. His clothes were unpressed, his linen dingy.

His face was gray except for two spots of hard color in the cheeks. His beautiful eyes were stealthy now, restless and brilliant. His smile was forced.

"Ah, Mollie—Billy—" He spoke with effort as if his mind were busy elsewhere. "I was just going out—urgent business with Wheeler—will you excuse me till I—"

"Oh, Don!" — Mollie was terrified at his eyes but, wrestling her hand from his sleeve, he was out of the room before they could stop him! (To be Continued)

Adventures Of The Twins

The Falcon's Arrow

Nick ran to the magic phonograph and turned the record to the other side.

Again everyone held his breath the better to hear the words of Longhead the Wiseman. There was a buzzing sound, then Longhead's voice rang out. These were his words:

The true king of both the Diddys and the Koraknots is the furious falcon. He is a brave king bewitched by a Sorcerer a thousand years ago, and turned into the form you now see. His son was turned into a dove. The reason for it all was that the young prince was in love with Princess Therna, and the wicked sorcerer wanted her for himself. The spell can only be broken by a marksman who will shoot the dove in the heart. Then both the falcon and the dove will return to their true forms and all will be well.

"Hear! Hear!" cried everybody in wonder. "The words must be true for Longhead never lies."

Suddenly the falcon flew down from the top of the tree on which he had been sitting. "Give me your bow," he said boldly to King Indig.

King Indig handed it over with out a word.

And for an arrow the falcon plucked out one of his own barbed feathers, the one that had guided Nancy and Nick on their travels. He held the bow-string in his beak and the arrow, he guided with one long taloned claw.

Whang! Away sped the arrow straight to the dove's heart. Instantly the dove vanished and a fine looking young man appeared in his place. He waved his hand cheerily at the people and then sprang to Princess Therna's side.

At the same time the falcon changed into his true form of a warrior king, before whom all the Diddys and Koraknots bowed in awe. Ugly King Indig and awful King Verdo bowed their heads too!

"Nancy and Nick, come here," commanded King Courageous, which was the true king's name. "I want to thank you for all you have done."

Your Husband's Thin Hair Needs Parisian Sage

Not hard to stave off baldness if you use the right hair saver.

How to Nourish Hair Roots and Make Hair Grow

Here's good advice to women who have husbands worth taking care of. Just because he is skeptical or careless is no reason why he should let his hair fall out or thin out—and perhaps grow bald.

If you wanted a bald headed man, you probably could have married one. Tell your husband that the time to save his hair is while he has hair to save.

Tell him that you have bought this bottle of Parisian Sage to save his hair and you propose to see that it is done.

If he won't use it every night for a couple of weeks, rub it into his scalp yourself.

At the end of that time he'll be convinced, for not only will the hair have stopped falling, but every bit of dandruff will be gone and his hair will look so bright and lustrous that you'll be proud of it.

Schultz Bros. Co. and all drug stores and toilet goods counters in the United States and Canada sell Parisian Sage—it costs but little.

Manufacturer Addresses New London Rotary Club on Federal Reserve Plan

Special to The Post-Crescent
New London—W. H. Hatten addressed the members of the Rotary club at their luncheon Monday noon at Elwood hotel on the subject of "Federal Reserve Banks." Mr. Hatten was a member of the Citizens League committee that drafted the plan for the federal reserve bank system before its adoption in 1914 and is conversant with each phase of the system. He outlined the program which the federal reserve banks aimed to accomplish and emphasized the extent to which they have accomplished those ends.

TEAR UP WALKS TO ERECT NEW LIGHTS

Work is Started on Ornamental System—City Not to Make Sidewalks Narrower

New London—One block of cement sidewalk on the south side of North Water street, extending from the Bank of New London corner to the Werner Drug store, was torn up Monday morning, and the work of laying cables for the ornamental light system has been started. The cables will be installed a block at a time and the new walk built along North Water to Shawano street. On the north side of North Water, the walk will be torn up from St. John place to Shawano street. The walk from St. John place east to the postoffice corner was built, provision was made for the installation of a new lighting system, and that block will not be disturbed now.

The question of building the new sidewalks two feet narrower to give an added width of four feet to the pavement, has been considered by city council and property owners, but it was decided that the benefit to be derived from the change would not justify the expense involved.

ZWICK TOO HEAVY FOR MILWAUKEE BATTLE

Help the Kidneys Fight That Cold

Colds and grip cause thousands of cases of kidney trouble. In any germ disease the system becomes filled with poisons which the kidneys must filter off. All too often this extra burden weakens the kidneys. Then you have constant backache, headaches and dizziness, you lack ambition, feel dull, nervous and depressed. Don't ignore these warnings! Help the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Home folks recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

An Appleton Case
Mrs. Theo. H. Lembecke, 827 Meade St., says: "I was annoyed with kidney weakness and suffered with dull nagging backaches and pains across my back. I felt tired and languid mornings and had no strength or energy. I read of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them as directed. KAUKAUNA HOPES TO HEAD LEAGUE

Electric City Team Confident of Whipping Oshkosh Next Sunday

Kaukauna—"Off for first place, is the slogan of the Electric city base ball fans now. The Kaukauna valley league team is tied with Oshkosh for second place and is only one game behind the leaders. It is an interesting race. Sunday's results will either move the team up or down. Anyway, Brautigan's boys will travel to the Sawdust city to decide whether Oshkosh or Kaukauna will be in undisputed possession of second place.

The players are getting plenty of practice now and should be in good shape to hold their own for the rest of the season. Diederich is pitching sterling ball and has good support, and when the local boys are on their hitting stride nothing will stop them. Kaukauna has beaten the Indians every game this season. The following Sunday Menasha will play on the home lot. The "Pall City" recently was in first place.

"IT'S ACTUALLY EXCEEDED MY EXPECTATIONS," AVERS APPLETON MAN OF TRUTONA

"I Thought These Newspaper Ads Were All Bunk But I'm Ready And Glad To Indorse Trutona Myself Now," Mr. Butler Declares.

"I really thought the ads I read in the newspaper praising Trutona were all bunk at first, but I'm ready and glad to indorse this great medicine myself now because it has actually exceeded my expectations in my case," was the frank and enthusiastic statement, made a few days ago by L. W. Butler, well known Appleton auto accessories salesman, residing at 335 North 1st.

"I was formerly a painter by trade," he continued, "and it just seemed that the constant smell of paint had permeated my entire system and poisoned it. My appetite had completely failed me and I was so nervous and restless I rolled and tossed all night long, getting up in the mornings feeling as though I'd had no rest at all. Oh, I felt so tired and worn out all the time! My bowels wouldn't act without the aid of a laxative. I'll tell you, I felt like a total wreck and was good for nothing in the way of work, when I began using Trutona."

"Well, sir, this great medicine has certainly given me splendid results. I'm honestly feeling as fine now as I ever did in my life. Gracious—how I do eat now! I can't describe how much I enjoy my meals nowadays. I notice also, that I'm sleeping just like I did back in the old days when I was a boy. Trutona's regulated my bowels, too, and that alone is a great relief to be free from the use of laxatives. It's just as I said, Trutona's positively done all and more for me than I expected of it."

Hundreds of bottles of Trutona, the famous tonic are sold weekly in Appleton at SCHLITZ BROS. Drug Store; in Neenah at MARSH BROS.; Berlin, M. & Z. SYSTEM IN STREET NUMBERS WILL END CONFUSION IN MAIL

Postmaster Zuehlke is Booster for Proposed Change in Numbering Houses

The public service department that probably will benefit most by the proposed change of street names and house numbers, if effected, is the post-office department. In the opinion of William H. Zuehlke, Appleton's new postmaster, Mr. Zuehlke has had 20 years of experience as assistant postmaster and has had ample opportunity to see the difficulties of a complicated street name and number system such as Appleton has.

The most essential part of the system suggested by O. P. Weisgerber, city engineer, is the numbering of houses 100 to a block and the erection of street signs at street intersections. Mr. Zuehlke said. The uniformity of street names, or the retention of but one name for each street instead of two or three names is an important element. The postmaster admits, but he is not in favor of a radical change as has been proposed by a few residents. This, he believes, would result in considerable confusion, not only for the department, but for the public and business houses as well.

NEW STREET SIGNS
"It is certainly to be regretted," he said, "that the city has but very few signs erected. The stranger coming into our city is handicapped for lack of them. In the winter the snow covers what street names are imbedded in the cement sidewalks. The matter may not mean much to experienced letter carrier, but it does make it difficult for a new carrier or a substitute. The parcel post carrier, who has the largest territory of all, is troubled most. The department may demand that they be erected."

"Numbering the houses 100 to a block, as Mr. Weisgerber proposes, will be welcomed by every employee of the department. It will make it convenient for the carrier as he delivers the mail. It will help him in arranging the mail before leaving the office. It will also be of help to postal clerks who sort out the mail for the carriers. Under the system they will know at a glance at the numbers just in whose territory the piece of mail belongs, as a carrier's route ends at a certain street. Under the present system, however, it is impossible to know if house number 470 of one street is at the same distance from a given point as the same number on a parallel street. Mail could be handled much more quickly with 100 numbers to the block."

KEEP OLD NAMES
"I am in favor of retaining the old

STATE HOLSTEIN MEN TO CONVEENE

County Holstein sales managers of Wisconsin will meet in the sales pavilion at Waukesha on Friday under the auspices of the Holstein-Friesian association of Wisconsin. This is one of the important meetings of the year, officers said on Tuesday, and all sales managers and others interested in the public auction of Holsteins were urged to attend.

W. L. Bair, Waukesha, president, and L. L. Oldham, Madison, secretary, of the Federation of Wisconsin Holstein Sales Managers, will be present.

The Federation of Wisconsin Sales Managers is an organization of sales managers affiliated with the state and county Holstein associations in an effort to elevate standards of public Holstein sales in the state.

Discussion will concern the coming fall sales, circuit grouping possibilities, and advertising possibilities, the setting of a stamp of quality and other matters incident to the holding and management of the county sales scheduled this fall.

BETTER GRADE ENVELOPES ARE SOLD BY POSTOFFICE

Stamp window patrons are to be served with a better quality of stamped envelopes, according to a new ruling of the postoffice department, said Postmaster William H. Zuehlke. Heretofore these "office request" envelopes have been furnished in two grades. The poorer grade envelopes are to be discarded for the higher quality in window sales. The difference in the cost in large quantities will be but slight. 100 envelopes selling for about 5 cents more than the others. There will be no change in the price on small quantities. The better grade envelopes are of a whiter and heavier paper.

street names, as we have become used to them. Streets with two or three names each should be designated by the ones that are the best known. "The confusion that would result from the change of street names and numbers would be merely a temporary one. As soon as the change would take effect, residents should notify all their correspondents of their new address. It would not be long before everybody would have forgotten all about the old numbers and names and things would be working more smoothly than before the change. "The city council cannot make the change too soon to please the postal department."

Don't Marry A Girl Who Can't Manage On $2,600

That is Advice of Comfortable Husband Who Gets Along Nicely on That Pay

Now, one of the husbands has something to say on whether you can live comfortably on $2,600 a year. He says that everything depends on the woman and what she is willing to do. He writes:

Dear Sir:
Your letters on this $2,600 a year proposition interest me, because they point out one fact clearly and that is: It all depends on the attitude of the woman. Any man with a common education has worked hard to reach the point where he can provide his family with more than $2,000 a year income. If the wife has been willing to equal his effort in working hard to make both ends meet, they have gotten along and have saved money. If not, well, then no amount of money will really make them "comfortable."

No fellow who is on the square wants his wife to wear her fingers to the bone working, nor to break down her health with drudgery. The lucky man is the one whose wife can see that by a little careful planning and economy, better days are coming. The letters which have appeared in the paper have shown the various types of woman, whom I sum up in my mind as those "who wouldn't do this and wouldn't do that," and that other class of good pals and splendid wives, who are constantly saying "I can do my own sewing, we can save a little here and a little there, we won't do that this year because we really should keep that money for something else."

I am thankful that I had sense enough to pick out that sort of woman when I married and my advice to young men who are going to be married is: Don't marry the sort of woman who cannot manage on much less than $2,600 a year.

A Comfortable Husband.

GET CERTIFICATE OF INJURIES NOW

About two weeks remains for veterans who received injuries during army service, and who have not up to this time applied for a certificate of injury, to obtain such a certificate. William Taylor Hall, co-operation department of the Green Bay Veterans' bureau, announced, declaring that there were a number of veterans in Appleton and Northeastern Wisconsin who have neglected to apply for their certificate.

The failure to obtain a certificate will work serious hardships on veterans desiring to obtain compensation. Mr. Hall warned, in the event that they apply for compensation five years or more after their date of discharge. The amended war risk insurance act provides that the certificates be obtained before Aug. 9, 1922.

All veterans who sustained injuries during service which may at some future date result in disability or death will have no claim to compensation unless they possess a certificate of injury, Mr. Hall stated.

He has warned veterans' organizations to advise their members of the necessity of applying at the Veterans' bureau for a certificate before Aug. 9.

Little Tot's Idea Of Fame Is To Be Gum Girl

One little girl in Appleton has picked the heroine whom she wants to worship, and evidently has decided in her own mind wherein greatness exists. Her ambition probably is to become a gum girl who stands on the street corner and gives out free samples.

The child, about 8 or 9 years old, stood on one of the busy corners downtown Tuesday afternoon holding in her hand a good-sized bag half filled with white mint candy which she had purchased somewhere. Everybody who passed her was handed a piece out of the bag, just as the yellow-clad girls handed out gum in a sampling campaign by a large concern here last week.

Each offer of candy was accompanied by the gum girl's remark, "Have a sample, please." People did not disappoint her. They took their "sample", smiled on the little tot and continued on their way.

What horrible power was forcing the three Drake brothers, HOBART, the Wall Street broker, ROGER, the scientist, and ANDREW, recently returned from Australia, to place themselves in ridiculous situations? Sedate, middle-aged and wealthy, the three were now terror-stricken. Some power forced Hobart to deliver a mock speech in a public square. Roger to burlesque a scientific paper, and Andrew to sit on the parlor floor and play with toys. They were sane, and unknown to them PATRICIA DRAKE, daughter of Hobart, secured.

OXYEN MILES, detective sergeant, and his colleague, SCOTTIE MCREADY, to investigate. Miles is employed as a houseman and Scottie is to report as gardener. On his first night there, Miles discovers Andrew preventing Roger from committing suicide. The following morning a letter throws Hobart into a passion. Miles finds that the letter did not go through the mail. Scottie investigates the family at the country club and reports to Miles.

"General history of the family and the way the neighbors regard them," Scottie grunted. "I've come especially to warn you of rumors of some strange actions of Hobart Drake's in Wall Street today. He's home, the night."

"Yes, and calm and more self-contained," Miles exclaimed in surprise. "That's because his mind is made up," returned Scottie. "Unless the rumor is unfounded—our friend Hobart is planning to retire or make his getaway. He has started to wind up his business affairs. Overheard anything?"

"Nothing," Miles told his colleague of the events which had occurred since his installation as the pseudo house servant.

Andrew is the only one who seems to be unaffected, but there is a forced and unnatural note in his boisterous cheerfulness. I don't know whether we're dealing with a bunch of lunatics or but that they are the victims of some obscure form of villainy that is unprecedented in the annals of developing nerves over the problem myself. I'll be glad when you tackle your job here."

Miles watched until the bulky form had vanished. Then he entered the kitchen door and fastened it behind him.

He had started for the servants' staircase when a flickering glow from the front of the house made him pause with every sense alert. Nervously he crept toward it and saw that it emanated from the drawing-room. As he advanced the sputter of flames and hissing thud of a falling log came to his ears and then the dull clank of metal.

Carefully he drew aside a fold of the heavy curtains which draped the doorway and peered in. There was no light save that from the fire blaze burning itself out in the fireplace, but against its glow he saw outlined a huddled, shapeless figure in a loose robe kneeling before the hearth and while he gazed a narrow tongue of flame leaped up, glistening on a heavy coil of silver hair which hung to the floor. It was Miss Jerusha Drake.

Holding his breath and moving silently inch by inch Miles moved through the curtains and into the shadow behind the tall cabinet, from around the farther side of which he could gain a more direct view of the crouching form. It was swaying back and forth and now a low indistinguishable mutter not unlike some weird incantation issued from her lips.

The flame died and Miss Jerusha drew a deep breath. "Gone!" The mutter resolved itself into a gasp, and then into an intoned speech at last. "Ashes, every one! If only the first had never been conceived this horror would not have descended upon us. They are destroyed, but their very fumes breathe poison."

Her hand clutched at her throat, as though she were indeed choking, and for a moment the woman seemed on the verge of collapse. Then catching up a small object which had laid on the table by her side she rose and turned. A tiny pinpoint of light shot out before her and Miles saw that the object she carried was an electric torch. Its every gleam distorted her face with the wisps of gray hair falling about it, into the semblance of the veriest witch.

He shrank back fearful lest he discover his presence, but Miss Jerusha stared straight before her with the wild blank gaze of one who looks upon the hideous visions of a mind distraught and slowly, grudgingly she passed from the room.

A soft rain was falling when Miles awakened the next morning and in the clear, gray light the scene which he had witnessed in the drawing-room seemed vague and unreal. That creature with disheveled hair and crazed eyes could not have been the dignified self-contained Miss Drake, nor could that cryptic speech have issued from her lips!

Hastening out into the hall he opened the door of the closet under the stairs. The mail bag was hanging in its accustomed place and the handy man's first task of the morning was to take it to the postoffice. There was no sign of life about the house and Miles soon had a kettle boiling and expertly slamed open two of the envelopes.

The first felt so bulky that he was not surprised to take from it a folded inner envelope inscribed: "Mr. Michael Kemp." It was unaddressed but the accompanying letter was explanatory: "My dear Sir: I am going to ask a most tremendous favor. I am not allowed to see or even write to Dickie anymore—it isn't that he has done anything, he is the darlingest boy alive, but both our families have decided to break up our happiness and Aunt Jerusha watched me like a lynx! Will you put the enclosed letter in one of your own envelopes and address it to Dickie for me? For heaven's sake don't fail me for I am simply heartbroken!"

"Hastily but with fondest love, "Pat."

Miles smiled to himself as he reread the letter with its enclosure, but his gravity returned when he opened the final envelope: "My dear Brother," he read. "I take my pen in hand to let you know that I am well and hope you and all are the same but I can say as much for the folks. The house has not been the same since Andrew came back from foreign parts more noisy and fresh like than when he was a boy only different but up to his old tricks. He played a joke on the houseman Monday and scolded him so he left. Hobart has took to liquor and made a holy show of himself in the town. Roger has got himself in a mess too over a speech he made in the schoolhouse last week. I am commencing to think they are all getting queer again like they was years ago when they first come into the money. Do you recollect what I told you about their actions? Seems like it was yesterday. Miss Jerusha has not been herself lately and no wonder with the gossip and all she has put a stop to her going out with that nice young man I wrote you about but I guess it will come out all right."

"T's afft sister "Hitty."

Slowly Miles replaced the letter and gummied the flap of the envelope together once more. He had heretofore regarded the lugubrious Mehitabel as negligible, but he realized now that she might be well worth cultivating. She thought "they were all getting queer again" like they were when their inheritance came. That was the outstanding phrase in her letter which struck him with the greatest force.

Miss Jerusha was her calmly reserved self at breakfast, and Miles could perceive no trace of the emotion which had possessed her at midnight.

"I wonder if you will go on an errand for me, William?" asked Roger. "I know it is raining, but I have an important letter which must go in the next mail."

"I'll go at once, sir," Absorbed in his thoughts the detective had plodded mechanically along the path and it was with a start of surprise that he saw the raincoat and bedraggled, broad-brimmed hat of Andrew Drake just ahead. He was walking rapidly beside a taller, more distinguished figure. Miles recognized him as the visitor on the night of his arrival, the next door neighbor, Enslee Graybe.

What could these two, so widely dissimilar in character and proclivities, have in common? Miles hastened his footsteps and was almost at their heels when they turned abruptly off at the head of a lane between two tall hedges. He was about to continue to the village when he turned to find a woman beside him. She dressed in a tailored suit of brown which displayed the buxom lines of her figure with rather startling frankness; a face that was undeniably pretty although of a coarse type, and bold hazel eyes gazed into his from beneath a fringe of all-too-yellow hair.

"I say, 'oo is that man?' she demanded with an imperative nod toward the pair who had stroked off down the lane. "Friends of yours?"

"The man in the raincoat is Mr. Andrew Drake and the older one is his neighbor, the owner of the house from which you see they came. His name is Mr. Enslee Graybe."

"Ow, is it?" Her eyes shifted from his to rest contemplatively upon the two figures already misty in the slanting rain. "Strike me pink it didn't fancy one of 'em was an old pal o' mine—I say, 'ow far is it to the station? My car broke down a mile back and I've got to be at the studio in New York at twelve."

"The station is half a mile further on, but here comes a jitney and it appears to be empty," Miles gestured toward a ramshackle taxi which was rattling down the road.

"Not luck!" She waved to the driver of the approaching vehicle and then once more her eyes sought the lane. "Andrew Drake, you said, and the white-headed old toff is Enslee Graybe? My mistyke!—Well cheerio! If you've a cinema in this giddy metropolis watch for little Maizie!—To the station, my man, and look sharp!"

Miles hastened to the village, mailed Roger's letter and lost not time in returning to the house.

The dreary day drew to a close and the evening passed uneventfully. The family were finishing breakfast the next morning when the rumble of a well-known voice sounded from the kitchen.

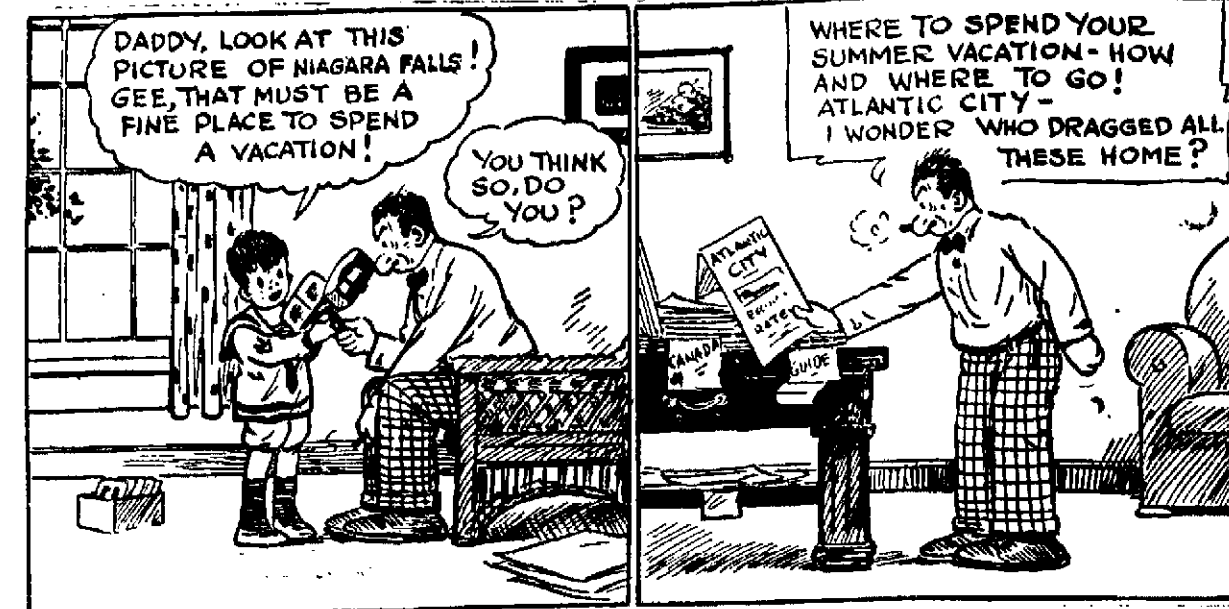

"Ze new gardenaire, he ees arrive," announced Piers.

"Hello, Jack!" Miles grinned as he advanced, for the absence of the grizzled, sandy bearded had wrought a vast change.

"I'll take you to Miss Drake," Miles led the way to the hall. "Study her, Scottie, for she's in on this, too! Whatever it may be that is affecting the men of the family, she is sharing it!"

COURT SAYS BUS DRIVER IS GUILTY

Leonard Sternhagen, driver for the A. C. Foman Auto Bus line of Menasha, was found guilty at Neenah Wednesday afternoon of violating the city ordinance which prescribes the schedule upon which motor busses shall operate. He was fined $10 and costs.

Attorney Henry Fitzgibbons, representing the defendant, appealed the case. The hearing is set for August 29 at 10 o'clock in municipal court at Oshkosh.

Sternhagen was arrested last Friday by Chief of Police C. H. Watts, of Neenah. It is alleged that the driver departed on his scheduled 11:20 trip to Appleton at 11:27. The arrest was made at the corner of Wisconsin-ave. and Commercial-st. at Neenah. Sternhagen entered a plea of not guilty. The arrest was the second which has been made under the ordinance regulating motor carriers here.

The case will involve a question of the legality and reasonableness of the new regulating ordinance for motor carriers.

SUMMER SESSION CLOSES FRIDAY

Sixty-Seven Teachers Have Been Getting Instruction
During Summer

Kaukauna — Summer session in Outagamie County Training school closes Friday afternoon. An all day session will be held to make up for a one day holiday July 4. Sixty-seven students have been taking instruction for the last six weeks, most of them for the purpose of bettering their teacher's certificates. That is 17 more than attended school last year. Ten of the students are from other counties. In addition a model graded school has been conducted in which pupils who wished to advance themselves more rapidly took instructions every morning.

Thirty-seven children attended this department and while receiving their instruction were used in practice teaching by the training school students. About eight student teachers completed their regular professional course by attending the summer session and will be eligible to seek positions for the coming term.

Applications for the fall term are already being received by W. P. Hagman, principal of the school. Indications are that school will open with a greater number of students than ever before.

Several young ladies are desirous of attending school and finding a place where they can work for their board and room. A few years ago Mr. Hagman had several calls from housewives for girls who might make such an arrangement and this year he will send out a call to have people see him if they wish to help a girl earn her way through training school and at the same time receive help about the house.

RED RUST BLIGHTING OAT FIELDS IN COUNTY

The common red rust has made its appearance quite generally on oat fields in this section of the county, according to reports by farmers. The disease is attributed to climatic conditions. The recent rains, followed by warm, sultry weather and unaccompanied by good winds is considered to have helped the development of it. Some farmers in Grand Chute noticed a veritable cloud of red rust in their oat fields. It takes the vitality out of the grain and caused it to dry up prematurely, thereby lessening the yield.

Says His Prescription Has Powerful Influence Over Rheumatism

Mr. James H. Allen, of Rochester, N. Y., suffered for years with rheumatism. Many times this terrible disease left him helpless and unable to work.

He finally decided, after years of ceaseless study, that no one can be free from rheumatism until the accumulated impurities, commonly called uric acid deposits, were dissolved in the joints and muscles and expelled from the body.

With this idea in mind he consulted physicians, made experiments and finally compounded a prescription that quickly and completely banished every sign and symptom of rheumatism from his system.

He freely gave his discovery, which he called Allenru, to others who took it, with what might be called marvelous success. After years of urging he decided to let sufferers everywhere know about his discovery through the newspapers. He has therefore instructed Volgt's Drug Store and druggists everywhere to dispense Allenru with the understanding that if the first pint bottle does not show the way to complete recovery he will gladly return your money without comment.

IF YOU HAVE ANY BUILDING PLANS

You want to look into the question of concrete construction. This spring, if you are intending to put up a garage, add a porch to your house, lay a walk, put a new floor in the cellar, or anything of that sort, remember that it is possible for you to do it yourself at a minimum of cost.

Concrete mixing, making the necessary forms, and laying the concrete for things of the sort mentioned are easy if you follow simple directions. Any of our readers can have, entirely free, a copy of a valuable booklet containing the necessary directions. The booklet contains also many valuable suggestions for uses of concrete.

To secure a copy, just fill out and mail the coupon below. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage. Be sure to write your name and address clearly on the lines of the coupon.

Mahendra Can't Find Time To Answer All Questions

Mahendra, the seer playing at Appleton theatre, now has more questions than he can answer during his engagement here, therefore it is useless to send more to this newspaper. Letters received hereafter will be disregarded.

Here is another batch of answers:
P. R. M.—Will I hear from the one I have in mind? Ans.—No, you will not hear from this gentleman, I advise you to forget him.

S. D. L.—How will our financial affairs turn out? Ans.—I see that you will be quite successful in business this year. Financially and otherwise.

H. F.—Will I ever meet a man I love? Ans.—I see that you will meet a man very soon that will deeply impress you, who will later become your husband.

Babe.—What does my best girl think of me? Ans.—I see that your best girl thinks just as much of you as you do her. So understand how matters stand.

L. S.—Will my husband prove a success? Ans.—I see that your husband's business will prove a big success. Not as good this year as next.

E. L. G.—I see that it is the fault of both of you. If you would not look for each other's faults you would get along better.

W. D.—Will my husband get better? Ans.—I see that your husband will recover. He will not return to the hospital where I see that he has been. I see a recovery.

A. B.—Will I marry the young man I am keeping steady company with? Ans.—Yes I see that you will marry this young man that you are going.

M. L.—Will I be able to persuade my parents to move to another town? Ans.—No, I do not think you could persuade them to move. Although I see a move for you.

M. M.—Will I be successful this winter? Ans.—Yes, I see that you will be quite successful in continuing working all winter. Do not advise a change.

A. J. O.—Will I ever go to Europe? Ans.—No, I do not see that you will go to Europe. Although I see a great deal of travelling for you later in life.

R. J. C. R.—Will I marry and be successful? Ans.—You will marry the girl you are going with and you will be quite successful in business.

M. G. P.—Will I be successful in my studies? Ans.—I see that you will be quite successful if you put forth a little more energy.

S. H. K.—I see a sale of the farm in the Spring of 1923. Regarding your son-in-law that is because of your actions regarding him.

M. E. K.—I advise you to take up millinery work; as to having your hair bobbed, go right ahead, you can't look any more foolish than you do at present so have it done.

E. H. C.—Where is out cat? Ans.—It seems to me that this was a Persian cat, I see very plainly that he was stolen, but that was about two months ago.

PEARL.—The trouble which surrounds you in the home at present will soon be adjusted.

R. S.—Will you tell me when my father and brother will find a job? Ans.—They will be both working within a few days. Your brother will get a very good position in the middle of August.

H. E. C.—John Ratz is at present in Milwaukee, you will hear from him next month.

H. I. B.—What became of my grandfather's wealth after he died? Ans.—It seems to me that this money was spent by near relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. John Jacobs and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ball of Milwaukee, autoed to this city Wednesday and are spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Rossmessl.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Weiner and son of Milwaukee, are visitors in Appleton. Miss May Bailey of Oshkosh, was a guest of friends here Wednesday.

DRIVER, BLINDED, HITS LOAD OF POLES

Ferdinand Radtke is Injured Slightly When Car Crashes Into Rear of Truck

Unable to see a loaded truck with tent poles protruding from behind because of the lights of an approaching machine, Ferdinand Radtke, 935 State st., suffered slight injuries in a collision about 11 o'clock Wednesday night on Mackville road. The truck was owned by a Chicago chauteau company.

Mr. Radtke was driving south and the truck was going in the same direction. It is said there were no lights attached at the end of the load of poles for the protection of drivers and at the moment of blinded sight the automobile crashed into the rear of the truck.

The front end of the Radtke machine was wrecked and the windshield broken. It happened that the poles were low enough so as not to go through the windshield and crush Mr. Radtke. One hand was cut by flying glass but he was all right otherwise. The car approaching from the south was owned by M. W. Place, Saymour.

WHITE AND ALLEN STILL FRIENDLY

By Associated Press

Emporia, Kas.—With his friendship for Governor H. J. Allen apparently undimmed William Allen White, Editor of the Emporia Gazette, was in his office Wednesday with no comment to make on the event of the past week, which culminated in a speech here Tuesday by the governor in which Mr. White was criticized for placing a placard in his window expressing sympathy for the striking railroad men.

Governor Allen's speech, while friendly to the editor, did not show any retraction from his original stand, that Mr. White had violated the industrial court. He said that Mr. White's position in the community and state necessitated that some action be taken.

The editor published a full account of the governor's address in his evening paper Wednesday under the headline "Henry Comes To Bat" but made no editorial comment.

Washington, D. Iceman's Daily Business Journal Is Best Record Of Weather Conditions

Weather Plays Big Part in Iceman's Business—First, Second and Sixth Wards Have Most Ice Consumers.

The ice man is not only an early bird but also a weather prophet for his business depends on the weather in more ways than one. In the winter time, he is anxious that suitable weather for the freezing and harvesting of ice crop be handed down from Fargo and Butte and places north. During the summer, when the success of his business depends on the warm weather and especially warm Sundays, he is anxious that the balmy breezes of the south be waived his way or rather the way of his customers.

If you want to know how the weather this year compared with that last year, facts form a large part of the ice business. If you talk to him now, he will probably tell you that there have been no very warm Sundays this year and consequently, few people have had to buy extra ice from the special service station at the back of the residence of Lawrence Lutz and William Jacobson. On warm Sundays, this place is one of the busiest spots in town with numberless autos, carts and vehicles of all descriptions in line for a "chunk of ice."

BIGGEST CONSUMERS

The confectionaries are the largest users of ice in Appleton, with the meat markets, hotels, restaurants and groceries also using large amounts. Residences in the First, Second and Sixth wards form a large percentage of the ice delivery business with the greater part of the families living there taking ice during the months of June, July and August. In other words the demand for ice is smaller. In about half the homes the ice is put into the boxes by the delivery men. There are not more than a dozen ice boxes in the city which can be filled from outside the house.

Weather plays a very important part with the supply of ice to residences over the weekend because by the weather conditions, the size of the junks of ice is determined. More ice is required in hot weather, of course, than in cool. It is a fact, according to the men who have been furnishing ice to homes for many years, that great deal of difference is found in the ice boxes. Some boxes keep ice much better than others and thus require less to keep the food cold.

TRUCKS TOO FAST

A peculiar situation has presented itself in the use of trucks for general ice delivery. In order to be successful, each truck should do the work of three teams, which would mean keeping six men on each truck. But if the truck went as fast as was necessary for keeping six men busy, the man behind could never catch up. The three teams are still used for the delivery of ice here, while at one time as many as 11 teams were kept by Lutz Brothers Ice company.

The morning of an ice man is almost as long as the working day of those who work on shift. He usually puts in seven hours before noon. It is necessary for the men to be on the job at 5 o'clock in the morning, which means that they must rise at 4. The usual work day of the ice man is not so long as it seems since he rarely has more than three hours work in the afternoon.

All the distribution of ice is not a daily affair. Many of the boxes filled during the week are not delivered until once in seven days or two weeks. Large amounts of ice are necessary for every picnic and celebration where many soft drinks are sold. This is supplied by special delivery.

DON'T FOLLOW WAGON

For safety first sake, the old practice of following the ice man and begging for a piece of ice has been practically stopped. Although some children do follow the wagon as the children go home, the danger from falling chunks of ice and many passing cars has been repeatedly pointed out until the children themselves have stopped the chase of "Gimme a piece of ice."

Prohibition too has hit the ice business by doing away with so many saloons where ice boxes needed constant refilling. The soft drink parlor does not use as much ice as the predecessors. Since the ice cream companies have ice machines and procure their ice supply outside the city, there has been no recompense.

TOBACCO POOL TO MAKE PLANS FOR FINANCING

GERMAN WAR VETERANS START RUSS COLONIES

Warsaw—Thousands of German ex-servicemen are founding colonies in South Russia, according to reports published here from Odessa. In the neighborhood of the latter city, large units of "nationalized" land have already been taken up by these colonists at the invitation of the Bolshevik government. Within the next two years the Soviets plan to establish 100,000 of these German colonies in South Russia.

SHERIFF NETTLED WHEN PRISONERS REJECT HIS FOOD

Alleged Swindlers Send to Res-taurants But Schwartz Says No

Two prisoners in the county jail would be served do luxe. Although they were not placed on a bread and water fare, they were dissatisfied with the food served by the sheriff and ordered their meals to be sent up from a local restaurant. They are Edward J. Turk, Green Bay, and C. J. Croke, Milwaukee, who are awaiting trial on charges of impersonating labor union officials and obtaining money under false pretenses. Sheriff Schwartz is quite nettled as a result.

"The prisoners get the same food that we eat in our own family," he said. "If we have veal, they have veal. If we have porterhouse steak, they have it. They are not going to get anything extra. If it is good enough for us, it is good enough for them."

The sheriff said he would put a stop to bringing in the meals from a restaurant.

Outagamie-co. youths who have been reluctant in enrolling for the citizens military training camp at Camp Custer, Mich., opening next week, are given a final chance to send in their applications.

A special message sent to Alfred Bradford, county enrolment chairman, and to the chamber of commerce, announces that there is room for 300 more young men who wish to take the month's training with all expenses paid by the government.

Applications that reach the Sixth Corps Area headquarters in Chicago by Monday noon will be accepted. Mr. Bradford will prepare the blanks for any who will call at his office above Downer drug store.

VOCATIONAL SCHOOLS FOR CITIES OF 5,000

By Associated Press
Madison—When a city has a population of 5,000 the establishment of a vocational school is mandatory and the provision of funds a legal duty of the city officials. R. M. Hoyt, deputy attorney general ruled Wednesday in an opinion to George P. Hambrecht, director of vocational education.

He held that the mayor and common council of the city of De Pere could be required by mandamus proceeding to appropriate funds that the local board of industrial education estimated to be necessary for operation of continuation schools.

SAYS BLAINE TAKES NO ACTION IN COAL CRISIS

Milwaukee—The alleged lethargy of Governor J. F. Blaine in the coal crisis was criticized Wednesday by J. J. Bloomer, training secretary of the Milwaukee Association of Commerce, who says he has sought for a month to cooperate with the governor in devising a state-wide coal distribution and conservation scheme.

"Reports from 41 Wisconsin cities on coal shows supplies on hand of 63,000 tons with the demand for annual consumption given as 1,150,000 tons," said Mr. Bloomer. "State officials must be familiar with these figures, yet the governor has maintained a complete silence on the coal question."

Hamacheck was 40 years old and married. He was prominent in activities of the town.

Algonia, Wis.—Adolph Hamacheck, vice president of the Bank of Algonia, drowned Wednesday when he drove his car into the Wisconsin pond, where he and a half from here. Hamacheck who had been connected with the bank for more than twelve years was driving along the road, when suddenly he turned the wheel and drove the car into the pond. KIMBERLY TEAM JUST AS STRONG AS IN FIRST HALF

Working To Duplicate Record Of No Defeats

Kimberly Plays at Hortonville Next Sunday—Pocan is in Fine Shape

Kimberly's County baseball team is out to duplicate its feat of the first half of the season, that of winning every game and ending the schedule with 1,000 in the average column.

The Riverside villagers have a strong team as is evidenced by the record and from all appearances it is just as strong in this half of the season as it was in the first. Kimberly's first game of the new season was by easily won from the Interlake team by the score of 16 to 3 but the Pulp-makers were badly crippled so that there was no real competition for the Kimberly outfit.

Kimberly plays at Hortonville next Sunday and although the team expects to meet tough competition it also expects to come out of the contest on top. Remmel is touted as a pitcher of the first water out at Hortonville but the Kimberly team shows no signs of fear of him.

The infield of the Kimberly team and the outer garden men are there with speed and heavy stick work. The Kimberly boys admit that they may have a hard game at Hortonville but are not looking for anything like a defeat.

TY COBB IS AHEAD OF SISLER IN HITS

After a straining struggle, Ty Cobb, for years slugging king of the American league, on Tuesday dragged George Sisler of the St. Louis Browns out of the batting lead. Cobb's percentage is now .413 with Sisler at .400. Cobb started this season to grab off the batting crown that he lost two years ago to Sisler, and last year to Heilmann.

Perhaps his managerial duties had tripped him at first, for during many weeks the Detroit boss stuck around tenth place in the American league slugging list. Then, with Sisler many points ahead and hitting around .400 almost every day, Cobb started after the lead St. Louisan a point or two a day he gained, hitting somewhere around .500 for the last month.

On Tuesday against Walter Johnson, the Georgia Peach made four hits in five times up, batting for 800, while the best Sisler could do was .833 with one hit against the Tanks.

NEW OUTFIELDER IS TAKEN ON BY APPLETON TEAM

Vic Everix to Play Right Field — Smith and Sorenson Have Been Released

Appleton's Valley league baseball team will go to Green Bay next Sunday for a tussle with the league leaders materially strengthened. A new outfielder, Vic Everix, has been taken on and will appear in the right garden. Vic comes to the Papermakers from Chilton where he has been playing on an independent team and is said to be a fast man and a good stick. Sorenson has been released. The addition of Eddie Zelenski, former Menasha third baseman, should be a valuable asset to the already speedy infield and Eddie will protect the third sack in the Bay game. Zelenski also is a good man with the bat. Smith has been released.

Art Wheeler, who has been playing with a strong independent team at Denver, also is a new member of the outfit and for the present will be used as a utility man. He is said to be a pitcher of no small ability.

Earl Howard will do the hurling stunt and Joe Shott, of course, will grab the tall hurler's hot ones. Tesch is going to be the guardian of first base and the speed twins, Goodman and Berginno, will do their stuff in first class style as usual at second and short. The outfield will be taken care of by Pribe, Durain and Everix.

EARL HOWARD TO PITCH FOR BAYS AGAINST KENOSHA

Howard Wants Chance for Revenge Against Simmons Kenosha Outfit

Green Bay — Earl Howard, considered by many as the best pitcher in the Fox River Valley league, will top the mound for Green Bay in Thursday's game against the Kenosha Bed-makers of Kenosha, one of the strong teams in the midwest league.

The Appleton twirler asked the chance to hurl against the Sincoos. The big right hander can be counted on to throw his arm off in order to take a fall out of Posttger's squad. Early this season, Kenosha decorated Howard with the order of can and the big right hander now wants to show 'em that they were all wrong.

IN GOOD SHAPE

Howard hasn't worked since Sunday when he took Oshkosh into camp, striking out fourteen men and when he steps into the box in Thursday's game which will start promptly at 4 o'clock, he will be in the pink of condition.

LITTLE POINTERS

There are lots of little points to the fishing game that a fellow over looks in his effort to acquire a working knowledge of the main show under the big top, and any one of these "little fellows" may mean the loss of a fine old specimen of the finny tribe. And hear me, you fisherman, there is nothing more cursed uncomfortable than to lose a fish, after you once hook him, through some little old piece of tackle giving up the ghost right when it should not. Through the fact that some info tip has been forgotten in the excitement of hooking the big one. And should this happen in the presence of a fellow artist, good-night! 'Twill be many a day before you hear the last of it, and much advice will be handed you on the subject of how he would have handled the strike.

In bait-casting, accuracy in placing the bait in the right spot is really the greatest essential. Far greater, in fact, the distance, which most fellows seem to develop more than anything else. Slamming the bait way over into the next county may get you a strike now and then, but deftly placing it in the open pocket of the weed bed and lily pads is a hundred to one better shot on landing a strike, and at the same time you don't have to use up a barrel of amica to reduce the stiffness in your casting arm.

When you start casting keep at it; don't make a few casts and then loaf on the job or look around for a new location. Cast into every likely looking spot along the weeds, into the pockets, by the windfalls and logs, every old place that you think a bass may be hanging around hoping for a feed. Keep your bait in the water and moving. Of course, a fellow cannot expect a strike on every cast, but placing them right and keeping at it increases your chances and lowers the lost time on the fishing waters.

Kimberly "Bugs" Try To Get Hortonville's Goat

The communication from "Kimberly Bugs", printed herewith, apparently is intended to arouse the ire of Hortonville baseball fans. It in no way represents the sentiment of the sports editor of this newspaper and is to provide a vent for the exuberance of followers of the Kimberly team.

The communication follows:

Editor of the Post-Crescent:

Almost every day one will notice a writeup about some team of the Outagamie League. But never will you see a writeup about the Kimberly team. Don't know the reason why. Probably if Kimberly lost every other game or so a writeup would be forthcoming. Well what's the diff? Kimberly is going to hand Hortonville a decisive beating next Sunday, which Remmel won't soon forget. To class him with our stellar artist Pocan, is laughable. With such men as "Butch" on 3rd, Carl on short, Loose on second, Gosha on first, "Nig" in rightfield, "Red" in center, Leo in leftfield and Ryan behind the bat, let 'em come.

Kimberly wants to have some Outagamie team defeat them. It would make the second half very interesting, also the old series at the end of the season. But if some of these teams don't wake up soon they won't defeat Kimberly.

When Hortonville played at Kimberly the home fans didn't go to the game, because they knew that Kimberly would win. But every time the Interlakes come to Kimberly the home fans turned out like a house on fire. They knew that the Interlakes have a good team, and could put up a game fight which they did with the exception of last Sunday's game when five of the Interlakes players were absent. The Hortonville players and their manager, are real fellows let it be said. But the Hortonville fans! For instance, when Kimberly played at Hortonville a few Sundays ago about thirty-five fans rushed up to the Kimberly manager and informed him that if his catcher would dare to show any of their batters the old oval after said batter missed it by a foot or ever dare to talk to their batters, why they would crucify our catcher. Terrible! To those kind of fans we might ask, since when is a catcher forbidden to speak to batters, and since when is a catcher forbidden to show a batter the old apple when said batter missed by a yard. And then they had the

The British may not be the best athletes in the world, but there is no denying the fact that they are dead game sports. Witness the treatment that Walter Hoover, Duluth sculling ace, received in London following his defeat of England's best. Such fine sportsmanship is good to see, and good to think upon.

MENASHA LOSES TO M'COY - NOLANS

Menasha's Valley league baseball team played a tie game of 12 innings with the strong McCoy-Nolan colored team Wednesday afternoon. The final score was 1 to 1.

The "Fals" had the Blackmen beaten by a single run up until the ninth frame when an error by the Menasha first baseman netted a run for the McCoy's.

Hank Schultz pitched for Menasha and allowed but three hits.
